Higher sales tax means higher prices. In the last year, water, food and PGE bills skyrocketed, making Sebastopol very expensive for businesses and residents. Sebastopol doesn't need another price hike. Vote no on this tax increase.

Sales tax works when businesses thrive. Increasing sales volume in Sebastopol's existing businesses 20% would generate over $900,000 per year - a win/win for businesses and Sebastopol's citizens.

Sales in local businesses have declined 3 years in a row. If sales keep falling, City revenues keep falling.

If sales keep falling and businesses keep closing, increasing sales tax fails to solve Sebastopol's financial problems.

Sebastopol's financial problems need long-term, sustainable solutions which support local businesses.

Ask Council to be a partner to Sebastopol's businesses. Ask Council to work with property owners to rent their vacant storefronts. Ask Council to capture revenue from 116 and 12 traffic.

Ask Council to do their job and revive Sebastopol's economy - the only long-term solution.

Sebastopol's financial crisis is due to terrible financial decisions made by past city councils. Previous councils failed to fund fire, police, parks, and roads, even though it was their duty to support these critical City services. Previous Councils created a fiscal crisis and left residents with crumbling roads and failing infrastructure.

This tax measure has no guarantees. Future councils can make the same bad decisions, leaving citizens with high prices, bad roads, deteriorating parks and understaffed public safety departments.

Increased sales tax makes prices higher without solving the problem.

Vote no.
